

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Ioana ALBU, PhD, is a senior lecturer (with tenure), at the University of Oradea, Faculty of Communication and Political Sciences, Head of Political Sciences Department. She is an expert evaluator for the National Council of Scientific Research in Higher Education, Ministry of Education, Romania. Email: ialbu@uoradea.ro

Andreea CERVATIUC, PhD, is a post-doctoral fellow associated with the English as an Additional Language Chair, Faculty of Education, University of Calgary, Canada. Her research specialty areas include: English as an additional language, language policy, second language acquisition. E-mail: acervati@ucalgary.ca

Andrada COSTOIU is a PhD student at the Department of Political Science, University of Illinois at Chicago. Her current research is centered on the integration of the ethnic minorities into their host societies and also on the relationship between immigration and international security. E-mail: acosto1@uic.edu

Dieu Donné HACK-POLAY, PhD, is Senior Lecturer in International Human Resource Management at London South Bank University. He completed the Doctorate in Education (EdD), specialising in Leadership and Management (Lincoln) and a PhD in Sociology (Surrey). His research interests are in migrant labour and comparative human resource management. E-mail: hackpod2@lsbu.ac.uk

Roland KESZI, Ph.D., is assistant lecturer at ELTE University, Budapest. He and the Krolify Research Institute (www.krolify.hu) – of which he is the director – have conducted several researches dealing with the topic of refugees and asylum-seekers in the Hungarian labour market and also about their representation in the Hungarian press.

Marcell MÁRKUS is a student at the Corvinus University of Budapest. He is currently working on his thesis on the topic of the representation of migrants in the media.

Janet McKNIGHT is a Tulane University Law School student and was interning at Projects Abroad Human Rights Office in June 2008. E-mail: janetrmcknight@gmail.com

Lilla VICSEK, Ph.D., is research associate at the Institute of Sociology and Social Policy, Corvinus University of Budapest, Hungary. She has conducted several researches on the topic of representation of minorities, migrants, refugees in the Hungarian Press. Other research interests: influence of the media, methodological issues of text analysis, focus groups, gender and workplace. E-mail: lilla.vicsek@uni-corvinus.hu