

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Manuel ABRANTES is a researcher in sociology affiliated with SOCIUS - Research Centre in Economic and Organizational Sociology, Technical University of Lisbon. He is conducting his PhD project on domestic services and migrant workers. His latest activities comprise research on migration, gender, employment and political participation. He is a Guest Lecturer in Sociology of Work and Leisure at the Open University Portugal.

Ioana ALBU, PhD, is a senior lecturer (with tenure), at the University of Oradea, Faculty of Communication and Political Sciences. She is an expert evaluator for the National Council of Scientific Research in Higher Education, Ministry of Education, Romania.

Constanze BRASSER, holds a bachelor on European studies (Maastricht University) and a First Class Bachelor of Honours (postgrad) in Diplomacy and International Relations obtained from the University of Canterbury, New Zealand. From September, 2009 to January 2010 she worked as an intern at the European Institute of Public Administration under the supervision of Dr. Katerina-Marina Kyrieri. During her internship she focused on research in the fields of migration and asylum policy and attended a variety of seminars.

Vera-Karin BRAZOVA studied at the Charles University in Prague and the University of Konstanz, Germany, currently pursuing her PhD in the field of public policy at the former institution. Since 2009 she has cooperated with the Prague mission of the International Organization for Migration. In her research and teaching, she specializes in the topic of migration and security issues.

Magda DANCIU is a PhD Professor at the Department of English Language and Literature, University of Oradea.

Katerina-Marina KYRIERI works as a Lecturer in the fields of migration, asylum, visa and border control policies at the European Institute of Public Administration (EIPA). From March 2011 she started to conduct a research for the IOM Network of Labour Migration and Integration Experts (LINET) and has the organisational responsibility for the implementation of the study.

Ioan LAZA is a lecturer at the Department of Political Science and Communication Science, University of Oradea.

Yanmei LI is an Assistant Professor in the School of Urban and Regional Planning at Florida Atlantic University. Her research areas are in housing and community development. She is particularly interested in policies related to affordable housing, sustainable community development, immigrant housing, and housing programs for people with special needs. She has also conducted extensive research in residential mortgage default and foreclosure and its impact on neighborhood quality and stability.

Rosalyn NEGRÓN is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Massachusetts, Boston and a Research Associate at the Gastón Institute for Latino Public Policy and Community Development.

Lia POP is university professor at the Department of Political Sciences and Communication, University of Oradea. She is the Director of the Editorial Board of the Journal of Identity and Migration Studies (JIMS) and the founder of the Research Center for Identity and Migration Issues (RCIMI).

Nataliia POHORILA is a PhD Senior Researcher at the Public Opinion Research Centre SOCIS

Yaroslav PRYTULA is Associate Professor, PhD at the Department of International Economic Analysis and Finance, Faculty of International Relations, Lviv Ivan Franko National University.